LANCER SYSTEMS ACHEIVES ISO9001:2000 CERTIFICATION

Allentown, PA (Oct 2007) – Lancer Systems, LP announced on 31 October 2007 that they have received ISO9001:2000 certification through KEMA.

Lancer Systems was formed on 1 January 2007, when it purchased the Defense and Fiber Optic businesses from Greene, Tweed and Co, Inc. and has recently moved into a 17,000 square foot facility in Allentown, PA

Lancer Systems is a team of engineering and manufacturing experts that are committed to developing and delivering innovating material solutions for tomorrow's most advanced warfighter systems. Lancer has the capability to design and manufacture elastomers, plastics, composites and optical connectivity products, as well as apply assembly and logistics expertise. Lancer fills the gap between prime contractor and component manufacturer.
